Subpoena threatened if Mueller probe held

Schiff to 'take it to court' if any part of report is buried

ASSOCIATED PRESS

WASHINGTON — A top House Democrat threatened Sunday to call special counsel Robert Mueller to Capitol Hill, subpoena documents and sue the Trump administration if the full report on Mueller's Russia investigation is not made public.

Rep. Adam Schiff, chairman of the House Intelligence Committee, said his committee will keep close watch on new Attorney General William Barr to see whether he were "try to bury any part of this report." Schiff, D-Calif., also pledged to "take it to court necessary."

He said anything less than complete disclosure would leave Barr, who now oversees the investigation, with "a tarnished legacy."

Schiff's comments come as Democrats have made it clear that they are ready for an aggressive, public fight with the Justice Department if they are not satisfied with the level of access they have to Mueller's findings.
